

Digital Dealer CONFERENCE & EXPO

Hi Dealer

The AI Hackathon returns to Digital Dealer 2026, and if you weren't there last year, here's what you're walking into.

Led by Brent Wees of idea.meet.plan, the Hackathon is a competitive, hands-on event where teams battle to build AI-driven marketing solutions for the automotive industry in real time. Not a case study. Not a hypothetical. You're building something, under pressure, with peers who take this seriously.

The AI Hackathon is built for dealership professionals who want to move past the "AI 101" conversation and into actual execution. If you've sat through a conference AI session that told you AI is important without showing you how to use it, this is the antidote.

Teams compete. A winner is announced at the closing reception that wraps Digital Dealer 2026. It's the right way to end two days of education designed, from the start, to be applied.

If you're evaluating AI tools for your dealership or building a business case for your executive team, the Hackathon gives you proof of concept before you walk out the door.
