

OFFICE 365 SUCCESS STORY SERIES: MCCLONE CONSTRUCTION COMPANY

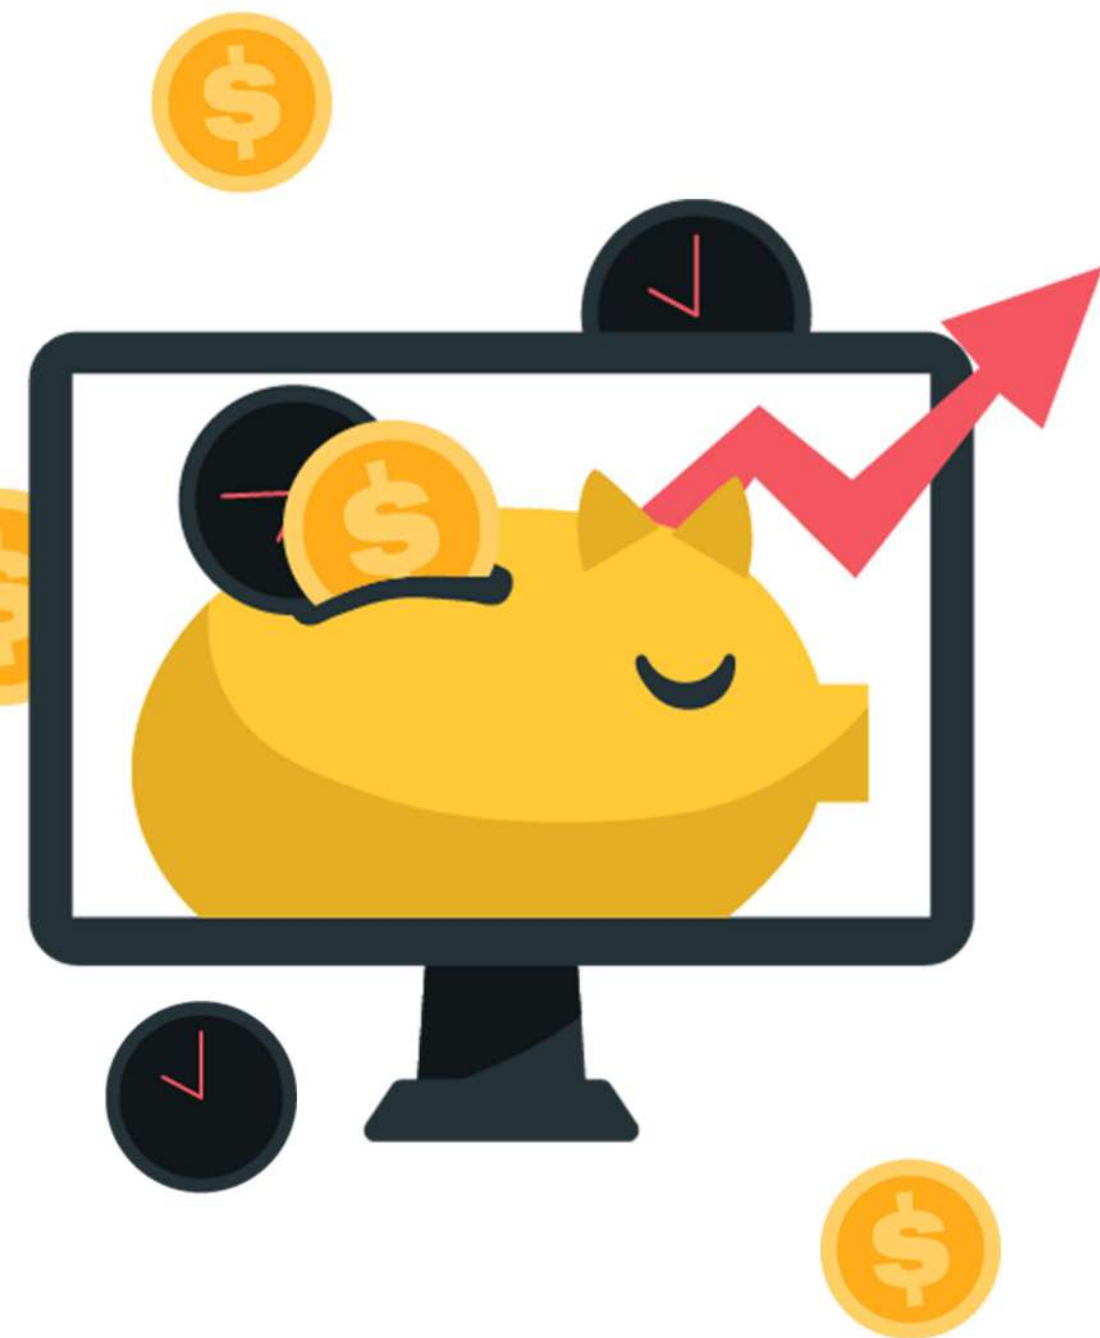

01

O365 HELPED TRANSFORM MCCLONE'S BUSINESS MODEL INTO A SIMPLE, COHESIVE MACHINE

Project/IT Manager Rick Owens found inconsistent productivity levels among their various offices while one office may have had a slow day, another office was too busy to complete all their tasks. So the company decided to transition from a divisional business model to a more integrated model. By joining offices, they could utilize different employees abilities based on the location and type of project.

SKYPE FOR BUSINESS: SAVING TIME AND TRAVEL

02

Skype for Business proved to be the most useful tool for McClone Construction. With the ability to meet with 250 people at once, host video conferences across offices, and screen share to make sure everyone is following along in the presentation, McClone saved time and travel costs.

"We've already seen a savings of at least 10 percent in our mobile phone costs, plus a 5 percent reduction in travel between offices, especially among upper management."

- Rick Owens, Project/IT Manager, McClone Construction

02

SHAREPOINT PORTAL IMPROVED BUSINESS PROCESSES

McClone Construction uses SharePoint externally to share information between its partners. Internally, employees use it to organize files and share information such as team calendars for various projects, as well as engineering documents.

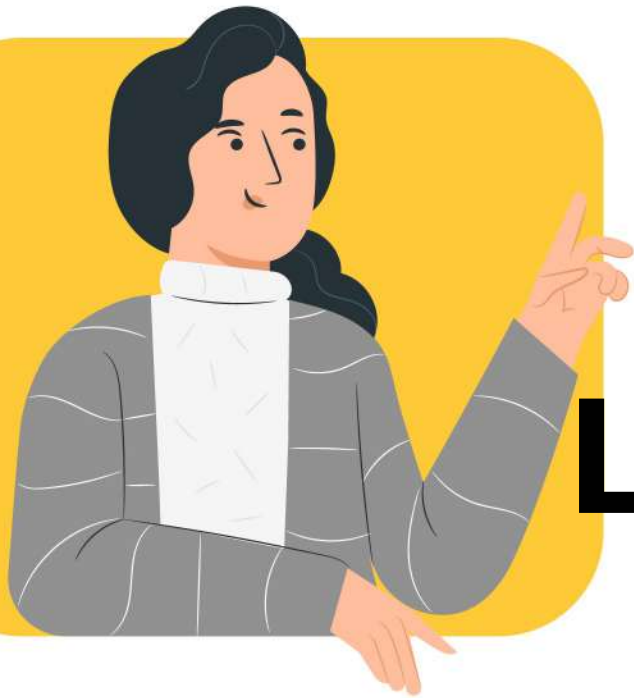

WORKING OFFSITE IS NOW A BREEZE

04

Employees download Office 365 applications not only on their work computers, but on their personal devices as well. This is great for employees who are always on the go. With automatic patching and updates, and the ability to be downloaded on up to 5 devices per user, It enables employees to stay connected and up to date on projects.

Owens appreciates how easy it is to add and remove employees without any surprise costs. Office 365 has increased productivity across McClone Construction and helped them become a more integrated and collaborative business.

04

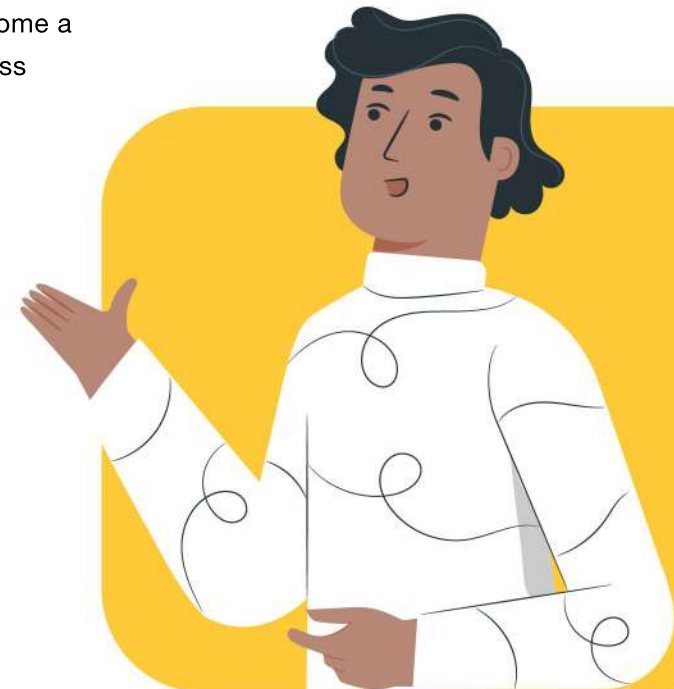

Let's Talk

Owens appreciates how easy it is to add and remove employees without any surprise costs.

Office 365 has increased productivity across McClone Construction and helped them become a more integrated and collaborative business

 /BlackpointIT
 /BlackpointIT
 /Blackpoint-IT-Services
 www.blackpoint-it.com

05